

Dear student

College is really fun and it's here where you can pick what you want to learn for your future career. At first I didn't know what to expect when I started college but after a few days I was really beginning to like it and I know you will too after a few days.

In hospitality and catering it's really good because you can learn such a lot in a short space of time. I have learnt more than I expected. On your first day on the hospitality and catering course you get to do some activities and get to know who is in your class – to help break the ice.

When it's Christmas time you will create Christmas dinners and when it is like a special time of year you will do themed meals – such as St Patrick's day or St George's day and you will have to create meals based on that theme which I found really exciting.

When you want to set achievements it is like going on to the next level of the course or completing your assignments

Since I have been at college I have been more independent in my studies and as a person in general.

Regards

Jobe Level 1 Catering